

The Psychology of People in Organisations

Melanie Ashleigh and Angela Mansi

The Psychology of People in Organisations

Visit The Psychology of People in Organisations Companion Website at www.pearsoned.co.uk/ashleighmansi to find valuable student learning material including:

- Multiple-choice questions to test your understanding
- Exercises and tests with answers
- Flashcards to test your understanding of key terms
- Links to relevant sites on the World Wide Web
- An online glossary to explain key terms

The Psychology of People in Organisations: PDF eBook

Table of Contents

Cover

The Psychology of People in Organisations

Brief contents

Contents

About the authors

Authors acknowledgements

Publishers acknowledgements

Guided tour

Foreword

What is work psychology?

Opening case study

Introduction

Definitions of work psychology

The origins of work psychology

The evolution of work psychology

Why work psychology?

Key perspectives in psychology

Work psychology and the development of research

What do work psychologists do?

How do work psychologists contribute to organisational effectiveness?

The development of positive psychology: the way forward?

Psychology in context: the application of psychology to social and global issues

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

Interactive group activity

Table of Contents

Further reading and online resources

References

Ethical issues and the nature of research in organisations

Opening case study

Introduction

Ethical issues

How do we decide what is ethical?

Ethics in psychology at work

The nature of research in organisations

Research approaches

Developing a theory

Research designs and methods

Advantages and disadvantages of research methods

Analysing data

Psychology in context: unethical practice at work

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

Interactive group activity

Further reading and online resources

References

Individual differences

Opening case study

Introduction

Approaches to understanding individual differences

Why organisations study individual differences

Individual differences in intelligence

Intelligence at work

Measuring intelligence

Individual differences in creativity

Individual differences in values

Individual differences in demographics

Table of Contents

Individual differences in emotions
Psychology in context: emotional intelligence
Chapter summary
Discussion questions
Interactive group activity
Further reading and online resources
References

Personality at work

Opening case study
Introduction
History and development of personality theories
Approaches and theories of personality
Personality and situational influences
Using personality theory in organisations
Psychology in context: the dark side of personality
Chapter summary
Discussion questions
Interactive group activity
Further reading and online resources
References

Worklife balance

Opening case study
Introduction
History of worklife balance
Worklife balance problems of definition
Types of working pattern
Worklife balance: practices and policies
Men, the child-free and worklife balance
Worklife balance around the world
Individual needs for a worklife balance
Stress and well-being at work

Table of Contents

The long hours culture

Stress, relationships and sex

Worklife balance: fact or fiction?

Coaching for a worklife balance

Psychology in context: the tyranny of technology the impact of technology on health and well-being

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

Interactive group activity

Further reading and online resources

References

Selection and assessment

Opening case study

Introduction

The selection and assessment process

Job analysis

Competency frameworks

Selection and assessment criteria

Selection and assessment methods in the workplace

Computer-based testing and the role of technology

Bias and unfairness

Performance assessment and appraisals

Psychology in context: proactive behaviour beneficial or not?

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

Interactive group activity

Further reading and online resources

References

Perception, attitudes and discrimination

Opening case study

Introduction

Table of Contents

What is perception?

Person perception

Attribution theory

Why do we conform?

Attitudes what are they?

Job satisfaction and organisational commitment

Psychology in context: valuing and managing diversity

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

Interactive group activity

Further reading and online resources

References

Motivation and learning at work

Opening case study

Introduction

Need theories

Contemporary theories

Self-determination theory (intrinsic and extrinsic motivation)

Learning theory

Expectancy theory

Equity theory

Goal-setting theory

Performance, pay and motivation

Work and job design

Work psychology in context: corporate social responsibility

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

Interactive group activity

Further reading and online resources

References

Working in teams and groups

Table of Contents

Opening case study
Introduction
Relevance of team working in the 21st century
Why are teams so popular?
Differences between groups and teams
Types of groups and teams
Theories relevant to groups and teams
Team training and development
Team learning
Negotiation and decision making
Psychology in context: conflict in teams
Chapter summary
Discussion questions
Interactive group activity
Further reading and online resources
References

Leadership

Opening case study
Introduction
Trait theories
Behavioural theories
Contingency theories
Neo-charismatic theories
New era theories
Leadership as a process
Leading individuals and teams
Differences between leaders and managers
Culture differences in leadership
Gender issues in leadership
Psychology in context: what causes bad leadership?
Chapter summary
Discussion questions

Table of Contents

Interactive group activity

Further reading and online resources

References

Organisational change and development

Opening case study

Introduction

Why do organisations need to change?

Implementing organisational change

Organisational culture and change

Resistance to change

Employee adjustment to change

Psychology in context: career self-management

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

Interactive group activity

Further reading and online resources

References

Glossary

Index