

INSIDE TRACK

ACADEMIC RESEARCH, WRITING & REFERENCING

MARY DEANE

ACADEMIC RESEARCH, WRITING AND REFERENCING

Inside Track to Academic Research, Writing & Referencing

Table of Contents

Cover

Academic research, writing and referencing

Contents

List of figures

List of tables

Foreword

Introduction: entering the academy

About the author

Acknowledgements

Part 1 Academic Integrity

Introduction to Part 1

Avoid plagiarism by keeping full records

Types of sources

Written sources

Numerical sources

Audiovisual sources

Formats

Academic Integrity

What is academic integrity?

Academic standards

Selecting sources

Academic conventions

Scholarly practice

Table of Contents

Seeking support

New to university

New to university in the UK

Advancing knowledge

Avoiding Plagiarism

Introduction

What is plagiarism?

A positive approach

Developing a KnACK for avoiding plagiarism

Time management

Penalties for plagiarism

Why study?

Why do some writers plagiarise?

Reasons for unintentional plagiarism

Reasons for intentional plagiarism

Avoiding unintentional plagiarism

What does not require referencing?

Your own ideas

Your own work

General knowledge

Summary

Quiz

Part 2 Research

Introduction to part 2

Locating Sources

A system for searching

Relevance

Readily available

Reliability

Peer review

Relevant sources

Table of Contents

Keep focused on your deadline
Find the right sources for your purpose
Work with others to find suitable sources
Begin with what you know

Readily available sources

Literature searches
Library catalogue
Databases
Searches in catalogues and databases
Reference management systems
Special collections
Interlibrary loan and document supply

Reliable sources

Digital media

General sources

Dictionaries
Encyclopaedias
Textbooks
Newspapers
Magazines

Specific sources

Journal articles
Chapters in edited collections
Chapters in monographs
Dissertations
Theses
Reports

Summary

Quiz

Assessing Sources

Criteria for evaluating sources
Expect to reject
Selection of sources

Table of Contents

The title

The subtitle if there is one

The list of contents if there is one

The index if there is one

The abstract if there is one

The subsections if relevant

The intended audience of sources

Language

Organisation

Written expression

Comprehensive accounts

Reading Sources Critically

Complete records

Critical reading

Skimming

Scanning

Planning

Be critical about authors credentials

Style

Content

Organisation

Critiquing the reliability of sources

Evidence

Does the source use primary evidence?

Does the source use secondary evidence?

Texts as secondary evidence

Texts that analyse secondary evidence

Is the evidence convincing?

Disjunction between points made and supporting evidence

A lack of up-to-date evidence

Bias in the information or ideas presented

Inadequate citation or referencing

Part 3 Writing

Table of Contents

Introduction to part 3

Integrating Sources by Quoting

Quoting

Acknowledging your sources

Why quote sources?

How to quote short extracts

Synthesising quotes into your own argument

Making changes to material you quote

Use of ellipses

Use of italics

Avoid using quotation marks when you are not quoting

Where does the punctuation go?

How to quote long extracts

Integrating Sources by Paraphrasing

Paraphrasing

Acknowledging your sources

Why paraphrase sources?

How to paraphrase

Discuss sources with others

Preparing to paraphrase

Where does the punctuation go?

Integrating Sources by Summarising

Summarising

Acknowledging your sources

Why summarise sources?

How to summarise sources

Summarising an entire source

Summarising a section within a source

Critiquing Sources

Critiquing

Acknowledging your sources

Table of Contents

Why critique sources?

- Validate your writing

- Enhance your written style

How to critique sources

- Drawing on a variety of sources to develop your own ideas

Part 4 Referencing

Introduction to part 4

The Harvard Style

- Variations of the harvard style

- Two elements

- In-text citations

 - How to cite

- Citing written sources

 - Multiple authors

 - Mentioning authors at the start of sentences

 - Mentioning authors at the end of sentences

 - Giving authors within in-text citations

 - Citing more than one source

 - The order for listing citations

 - Page numbers and in-text citations

 - Page numbers and paraphrasing

 - Page numbers and summarising

- Citing secondary sources

- Citing numerical sources

- Citing audiovisual sources

 - Citing films, videos, and DVDs (not downloaded)

- Citing digital formats

 - Quality control and online sources

 - Corporate authors

 - Dates and online sources

 - Page numbers and online sources

 - Downloads

Table of Contents

Citing the speaker as author

Citing the organisation as corporate author

Citing personal communications

Citing blogs

Citing online discussion fora and mailing lists

Decisions about citing

The list of references

The link between in-text citations and the list of references

How to construct a list of references

Use your judgement

Referencing books and similar types of sources

Books

Authors

Editors

Translators

Dates of publication

Editions

Titles

Capitalisation when referencing books

Place of publication

Publisher

Other types of books

Referencing secondary sources

Referencing journal articles and similar types of sources

Journal articles

Accessing journal articles online

Newspapers and magazines

Referencing websites and similar types of sources

Audiovisual recordings as downloads

Audiovisual recordings (not downloaded)

Blogs

Online discussion fora and mailing lists

Personal communications

Table of Contents

Lectures

Should you borrow material from lectures?

Decisions about referencing

Academic Disciplines and Referencing Systems

Similarities between referencing styles

Humanities

Modern Language Association (MLA) style

MLA in-text citations

MLA list of works cited

Social sciences

American Psychological Association (APA) style

APA in-text citations

APA references

Sciences

Council of Science Editors (CSE) style

CSE superscript citations

CSE cited references

Conclusion: succeeding in the academy

Glossary

Quiz answers

List of references

Bibliography

Index